

Become a policy leader to put your talents to work for Canada

Are you interested in:

- working in the federal public service as a mid-level to senior policy analyst?
- proposing creative solutions to Canada's biggest policy challenges?
- advising senior officials in a constantly changing environment?
- working on a variety of issues and directing your career path according to your interests and expertise?
- being part of a highly connected network of passionate and motivated alumni?

Apply to the Recruitment of Policy Leaders program, and if you're selected, you'll be included in a diverse pool of talented and experienced university graduates, scientists and professionals.

Use your skills and expertise to make a difference

Looking for a challenging and rewarding career in the federal public service? By becoming a policy leader, you can help develop government policies to meet today's key challenges.

Policy leaders work in a variety of areas including climate change, criminal justice, digital economy, food security, foreign policy, health, international trade, national security, reconciliation with Indigenous Peoples, and more. Past participants will share more information and answer your questions at virtual briefings during the campaign.

Program benefits:

- access to job opportunities that match your interests and areas of expertise in a variety of departments and agencies
- matching with a mentor who will help you network and guide you through the job search and hiring process
- access to a network of professionals who continually seek new challenges and who are interested in tackling Canada's most critical public policy issues
- invitations to orientation sessions and regular social events, connecting you to other successful candidates and learning opportunities

Become a policy leader

The Recruitment of Policy Leaders program seeks people with diverse backgrounds who have the potential to create positive change and make a significant contribution to the federal public service. This program creates a pool of exceptional candidates ready to be hired into a variety of mid- to senior-level policy-related positions in the federal public service.

Apply online from October 17 to 31, 2022

After this date, Indigenous people who self-declare can also apply from November 2 to November 30, 2022.

After this date, persons with disabilities who self-declare can also apply from November 2 to November 30, 2022.

For more information, visit the Recruitment of Policy Leaders website