LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Cape Breton University is located in Unama'ki, the ancestral and unceded territory of the Mi'kmaq people, who we acknowledge as the past, present, and future caretakers of this land. Our relationship is based on a series of Peace and Friendship treaties between the Mi'kmaq Nation and the Crown, dating back to the early 18th century. We recognize that "We are All Treaty People." We also acknowledge that people of African descent have been in Nova Scotia for over 400 years, and we honour and offer gratitude to those ancestors of African descent who came before us to this land.

Research

Cape Breton University researchers study topics that address real-world affairs. From pursuing community-engaged research to forging partnerships in public health and environmental sustainability, CBU faculty – with the support of student research assistants – are responding to local, national and international realities.

These efforts continue to be recognized through prestigious awards including a recent investment of $12.4 million from Research Nova Scotia to support CBU's Dr. Alison Grittner, faculty in the Bachelor of Social Work program, in a seven-year research project to develop and pilot supports for rural Nova Scotians to age in the right place. Currently underway, this project marks the largest research grant in CBU's history and is a notable example of how CBU's research efforts are making a difference to academics, students and communities.
